Andrew Jackson High School, South Bend, Indiana 46614 Volume 10

When yellow light is on, class time is running out

Jackson High School has no bells, no clocks in classrooms, no buzzer to herald the end of the period. There is only the yellow light which blinks on suddenly and silently in a small panel by each classroom door to signify that time is running out. In one minute, it seems to shout to students and teacher alike, the green light will come on to signal the dismissal of class. That minute during which the yellow light is on is a minute in limbo.

When the yellow light comes on, as every Jackson student knows, it is time to pack away pencils and books and start talking to your neighbor. It is time to plan ahead, with such conversation openers as "What's for lunch?" or "Can I copy your notes?" Some teachers hurry to finish an important point or try to summarize the highlights of the class session when the yellow light comes on. Others just close their books because they know that further listening at this point is unlikely.

On certain days, however, when a theme or a problem or a lab experiment is due at the end of the period, that last minute is packed with accomplishment. The yellow light signifies so little time to do so much. Then, the green light comes on and everyone piles through the doorway—except the teacher who is already preparing for the next class.

Ten years is a short life for a school

In 1975, the urgency of the yellow light, with its insistent reminder that "time is running out," seemed to apply not only to the single class periods of the day but to the very existence of Jackson as a high school. The yellow light was on for the athletic teams, the dramatists, the musicians, and the journalists, who were always aware of the "last-chance" syndrome. There would be no "next year" in which to do better.

For in the fall of 1975, Jackson is scheduled to become a middle school. With the exception of the Class of '75, the entire student body will transfer to Riley High School in September. So decided the Board of Trustees of the South Bend Community School Corporation on a fateful Monday in February, 1973.

As time passed, community bitterness and disbelief changed to resignation and acceptance of what is apparently an inevitable merger of school districts. Jackson's tenth year is to be its last. And the recurring slogan on everybody's lips—from Student Council president to cafeteria cook—was "Let's make the last year the best."

JACKSON TIGERS Harry Ganser, Jim Kretz, and Jim Ellar break through the hoop to start the second half of the Jackson-Riley football game.

South Bend gets 'fired up' for Bicentennial ceremony in '76

But now for the good news! The city of South Bend is looking toward the future with optimism. Its downtown River Bend Plaza sprouts new trees, petunias, and park benches almost daily when the weather is right. The committee on beautification of the St. Joseph Riverfront envisions an upsurge in boating and fishing. And a magnificent white foam waterfall is planned as part of the scenic view from the windows of a civic center now under construction.

The demolition of buildings in the center of town is largely completed now. The wrecking balls have given way to more positive signs of progress—scaffolding, neat piles of new bricks, architect's drawings. Already a refreshing reality is the 6-block-long pedestrian mall with its shrubbery and fountains and supergraphics.

Said to be the world's largest curb-to-curb mural, the three blocks of street painting combine bright red, yellow, orange, and blue to make a funky stage for the frequent activities planned by the Bicentennial Committee and other civic-minded groups as the city joins the nation in celebration of its 200th birthday in 1976.

Vacations, Work,

Summer of '74 whizzed by . . .

Summer for some Jacksonites meant a daily trip to a nearby pool or a weekend at the cottage. Several worked toward completion of 4-H projects which would win them honors at both local and state levels, while others earned money at summer jobs.

Some spent their time with school-sponsored activities such as Driver's Education and Summer Band. Debbi McClure and Doug MacHatton, Jacksonian and Old Hickory editors respectively, attended a summer workshop at Indiana University to prepare for this year's publications. Seniors Jennifer Hillman and Tim Damon each spent a week at Indiana State University in Terre Haute participating in Girls State and Boys State respectively. There they learned the basics of government and took part in mock elections.

Terri Gavin, Mary Jordan, and Kim Rodgers lived in Germany for part of their summer. Terri went by way of the Indiana Honors Abroad Program, while Mary and Kim were with Youth for Understanding. Touring Spain with Spanish students and teachers from the Midwest were Steve Pankow, Dee-Vee Deen, Bill Butterworth, Liz Hohl, Brenda Torkelson, and Mrs. Margeret Butterworth. All agreed that the trip was "unforgettable."

JOBS JOBS JOBS

Jobs play an important role, especially for the upper-classmen. A poll of the four classes indicated that just under 50 per cent of the juniors and seniors held jobs. For sophomores, results showed approximately one fourth had jobs; for freshmen, about 13 per cent. The poll also showed that more girls worked than boys.

Reasons for jobs vary. Some students are saving for college, some want spending money, some want to be more independent of their parents, and some just want something to do. Whatever the reason, Jackson students are willing to give up leisure time to work.

Winning football season gives impetus to spirit in Jackson's last year

Autumn leaves and football games are traditional stereotypes of fall for most people. This year at Jackson, fall meant more. The entire student body got into high spirits to make this last year of Jackson the best. Student enthusiasm rose and apathy vanished with a whirlwind of activity. Powderpuff football, spirited pep assemblies and an extra special Homecoming Week featuring the Legs Contest, 50's day, Color day and Class day all made the fall an experience that will not soon be forgotten.

Even classes seemed to be pepped up by students' ingenuity. With this being Jackson's final year as a high school, each activity was special for all involved.

Detectors, collectors hooked on hobbies

Hobbies at Jackson vary as much as people do. Some are money-makers as well as fun. Mike Everett uses his metal detector to find money and other valuable objects after football games. He's already collected enough money to pay for the detector.

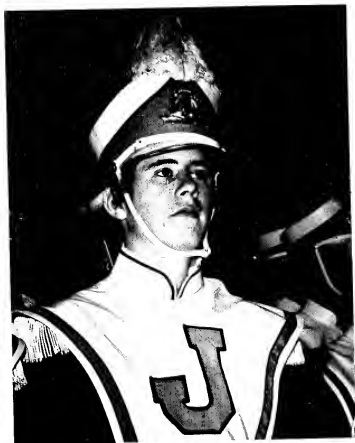

Chris Willy, Lee Brinley and Kent Heckaman, along with a few students from other schools, pooled their talents and came up with a band, "The Sons of Sound." Tod Mabry found that collecting things was an interesting pastime. One entire wall of his room is donated to his collection of beer cans. It took him about three years to collect them all.

Although there was a lot to do with school activities, Jacksonites found time to play football, baseball or basketball with the neighborhood gang or even watch television.

Students had a choice in class scheduling

This year students at Jackson enjoyed more freedom in their class scheduling than in the past. For the first time they participated in arena scheduling. Students were able to pick which subjects they wanted to take and even which teachers they preferred. This meant no hassling with computers downtown. The picture at right shows the "arena" which was set up in the home economics room where students took the time to make important decisions for the upcoming semester. Parents helped in the scheduling.

Bobby socks, saddle shoes, and greasy hair were the going fashions at Jackson on the 16th of October. More than 75 per cent of the students showed their enthusiastic spirit by dressing up for this nostalgic day. Even some of the teachers got into the act when they took out of moth balls their memories of the past, including letter sweaters and fraternity pins.

The activities of the day fit closely with the 50's theme. A jitterbug was held in the cafeteria at lunchtime as well as a bunny hop in the gym after school. Of course a day in the 50's wouldn't be complete without at least the mention of a few rumbles in the school parking lot at dusk.

Finding the authentic costumes was part of the fun. Some girls rummaged through the shelves at Goodwill and Salvation Army stores, looking for mohair sweaters priced under $1. It was easy to pick up a 50's skirt for 50 cents. Boys cut out or rolled up the sleeves of tee-shirts and printed "CC Aces" or "Creeps" on the back of the shirts. Many wore baggy trousers. Hairdos were as important as clothes in creating the 50's atmosphere. Girls wore their hair in ponytails tied with ribbons, and boys slicked theirs back. Mr. Larry Szczecowski, Mr. Tim Mozjik, Mr. Steve Herczeg, and Mrs. Darnell Bailey set the styles among the teachers, and several others were heard to reminisce about the good old days.

With the pep band playing "The Stripper" during the Football Homecoming pep assembly, Craig Frazier kicked off his pants, revealing gym shorts and his contest-winning legs underneath. He then paraded barelegged around the gym to give his fans a glimpse of the real thing. The contest, which featured pictures of the football lettermen's legs, was just one facet of Homecoming festivities.

In the Student Council-sponsored Spirit Week, preceding Homecoming, students and faculty members dressed up for 50's Day, Color Day, and Class Dress-up Day. On Dress-up Day the seniors wore sunglasses and hats of a wide variety. Crazy socks were worn by the juniors—everything from stripes to socks with toes in them. The sophomores dressed as farmers in overalls and straw hats. The freshmen were unmatched shoes and rolled-up pants.

Enthusiasm at Friday's hour-long pep assembly reached a peak with "Elroy and the Eldorados" singing "Taking Care of Rogers." The football team did take care of Michigan City Rogers that evening, beating them 40-0. Each class was represented at halftime with a float and Mary Jo Urbanski was crowned Homecoming Queen. Following the game students celebrated the victory at a dance.

and Thanksgiving Basket Drive

Everything from Indians and gangsters to ugly old witches arrived in the JHS gym for the Halloween Dance. The sexiest costume was worn by Roger Landry; Dan Hawley's Mafia suit was the most beautiful; Mike Boochoer's old man costume was the scariest; Indians Kim and Rock Wagner were chosen best pair; Brian Hairston's vampire was the scariest in the Halloween spirit.

Another activity sponsored in the fall by Student Council was the annual Thanksgiving Basket Drive. Students and staff contributed about $600 and more than two tons of food, enough to feed 54 families. Homerooms collected the food and $260 with freshman homeroom 110 leading the pack. Collecting the other $340 were ugly couples Janet Niedbalski, Tom Hurwich; Brenda Hill, Jim Greulich; Jennifer Koepkey, Mike McGirr; Connie Scholz and George White. The winning "uglies" were Janet Niedbalski and Jim Greulich.

Seniors win hall contest for fourth year

For the fourth year in a row the class of '75 won the hall decorating contest. They had stiff competition from the other classes, but their theme of "Freeway to Success" won in the end.

This year's senior performance contrasted sharply with last year's Seniors "Apathy Hall." A giant tiger with the word Seniors worked into his stripes and the tiger paw prints on the floor were the highlights. The seniors' opinion of themselves was shown up by the sign "We're not getting older; we're getting better—which their hall proved. Members of all four classes stayed at school until nearly 10 p.m. in order to make their halls ready.

The Homecoming pep assembly started with a group of songs by Elroy and the Eldorados. According to Elroy, the group made a special effort to make the assembly and do a few songs for the team. Coach Joe "Duck" Krietzman, alias Jim Coyle, gave his predictions about the game, to the delight of the audience and the dismay of the team mascot—a real duck! Winner of the arm-flex contest, Roger Landry, gave an exhibition of his winning arm.

The Homecoming court was also introduced. The queen was voted on during first hour by the entire school. Winner Terri Wileman was announced during halftime ceremonies at the game.

To top off the evening, Booster Club sponsored an all-school dance in the cafeteria. Students boogied all night to the music of Zap. And at 11:30, a mob of hot, sweaty, tired, but satisfied kids helped replace the cafeteria tables. All in all, the hall contest did much for a moral booster and a renewing of Tiger pride as each class competed against each other, yet were drawn into the common goal of showing others just who the Tigers were.

No end to inflation, recession, and unrest

With the resignation of President Nixon, the year 1974-1975 left its mark on history. Gerald Ford was appointed President, and for the first time a man not elected by the people became Chief Executive of the U.S.

Headlines that dominated the world scene included the Arab oil embargo, the continuing war in the Middle East, and the civil war in Northern Ireland. Nationally, the rate of unemployment rose sharply, and inflation caused some Americans to economize. To help ease the economic situation President Ford put forth bills to Congress suggesting cash rebates on taxes and a tariff on imported oil. To encourage sales some car dealerships also offered rebates on new and used cars.

The "Era of Ara" ended in the 1975 Orange Bowl, when Notre Dame defeated Alabama. Ara Parseghian resigned as head coach, but he would remain at Notre Dame. Mr. Dan Devine, coach of the Green Bay Packers, replaced Parseghian.

Jackson goes Hollywood

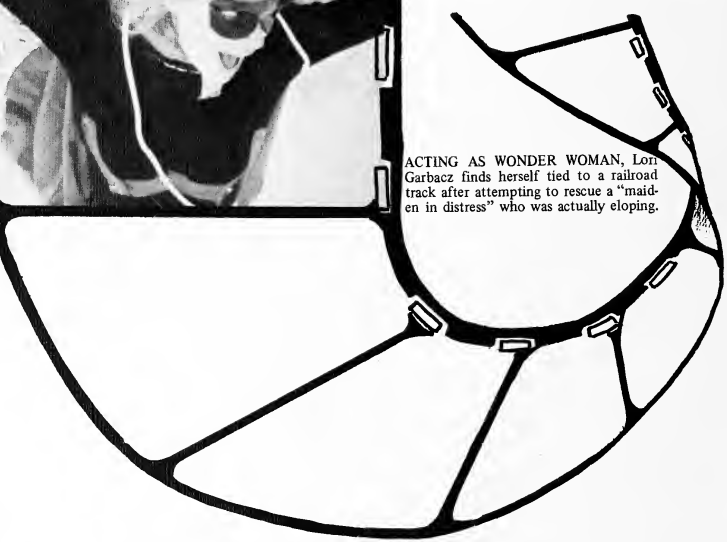

Commercials, spoofs and animated films were the projects of three, semester-long Language of Films classes taught by Mrs. Faye Nelson. "Wonder Woman," a commercial for Jagger Razors, and a public service message about drinking and driving were a few of the films made. Jackson's film class was the only one in the city in which films were actually made.

Mrs. Nelson's students studied short experimental films, old-time movies and computer-made films. They learned how to use a movie camera and to splice film. After the films were made, they were sent to Chicago to be developed.

Of course it wasn't all fun and easy. It took a lot of muscles and patience to make a movie. Cameras and equipment had to be carried to location; then it was sometimes necessary to wait for hours for the weather to cooperate and to get just the right amount of light. Some filming was done in the cold winter weather which was also difficult.

Lori Garbacz while parading as Wonder Woman received a few strange looks from passing people. Another girl pretending to be hitch-hiking "Anywhere" as indicated by her sign got a lecture from a woman driving by.

"We all had a lot of fun," said Cathy Linster, "and we really enjoyed making films."

'English' covers all kinds of communication

The increased flexibility of scheduling this year made it possible for the English department to add 18-week courses in Debate and Humanities and expand Film Appreciation to a half year. Actual movies were produced by student teams in three film classes. More than once passersby were startled by strange antics in public places, not recognizing the "actors on location." Staging techniques were put into practice by drama classes in three Jackson productions: "You Can't Take It With You," "The Roar of the Greasepaint the Smell of the Crowd," and a play for the children of the community. Journalism students wrote stories and sold ads for the Old Hickory and learned basics of layout and typography for various publications. A total of 20 different courses were offered as electives.

There it was in homeroom every Friday—the Old Hickory—to rouse controversy, make celebrities out of obscure Jacksonites, and provide an escape from lessons when held inside a notebook. The paper was easier to hide this year, as the staff changed its format from tabloid to news-magazine —from four pages to eight pages of half the size. The cover became the focal point for special photographs, features, and art work, the latter provided by talented senior Kathy Larson. A senior triumvirate of Doug MacHatton, Marnie Brehmer, and Nancy Fahey led in the production of the Old Hickory. The girls assigned and edited news and features respectively, and Editor-in-chief MacHatton took over from there, spending most of his Wednesday evenings at the printer's until the last correction was inserted. Greg Levan came in midyear as advertising manager.

Yearbook staff inserts spring supplements

When the 1975 Jacksonian arrived in late May there was much to do before it could be distributed to the school. A green light had to be colored in by hand and special insert pages, which included the final events of the year, had to be glued into the book.

Although working on the yearbook is tiring and nerve-racking, it isn't without its lighter moments. Whenever a staffer had a birthday, Editor-in-chief Debbi McClure was sure to bring in a homemade cake. She was also constantly cleaning the publications room and it is because of her cakes and cleanliness that she earned the nickname of "Susie Homemaker." However, she did work hard on this yearbook. She started planning it in the summer by attending a two-week workshop at IU Bloomington.

Around 2:15 p.m. every Wednesday a new face popped up around the school. It was the mustached face of Gene Zehring Jr., lovingly known to the staff as "JR." When ever a deadline was near Gene would always come through with the pictures the day after he took them. Frank DeMike, Roger Landry and Doug MacHattton were also in attendance at many school functions looking for pictures.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF Debbi McClure advises her staff by showing examples from other yearbooks.

JHS DRAMA:

"You can't take it with you". . .

The JHS players, under the direction of John H. B. Kauss, presented Kaufman and Hart's comedy classic "You Can't Take It With You" Nov. 14, 15, and 16. Play rehearsals got off to a good start. But shortly before the play opened, Tim Grogan was hit by a car and was hospitalized for a few days. He escaped major injuries, suffering only a couple of broken fingers, so he was able to participate in the show. The cast and Mr. Kauss felt that after this nothing could possibly happen until it was learned that Steve Johnson had come down with a case of pneumonia. He wasn't quite over it in time for the performances, but he played his part anyway. To top all of this off, Cheryl McDonald became sick during one of the performances. Despite all the hard luck, the old saying still held true, "The show must go on."

Special props were bought or borrowed by Mr. Kauss. A bald headed wig was ordered to give Chris Willy the older look, and a curly wig to make Kim Pound the 1930's young and beautiful. The play, taking place in the 1930's, needed such props as an old typewriter, pedestal phone, phonograph, costumes, furniture, and pictures.

After the play came the usual let-down, but maybe the cast was more aware this time of the special quality of plays for Jackson High School. They seemed to realize that, as the play says, "You Can't Take It With You."

Artists demonstrate skill and creativity; three receive honors

Over the years, Jackson art classes have come up with some interesting projects and this year was no exception. Art students Kim Kapshandy and Kathy Larson created a memorial sculpture to be placed in the school courtyard. Two sides of the sculpture are for fine arts, two for sports and spirit, and two for academics. Three art students received recognition for their art ability. In Robertson's Scholastic Art Awards, the Gold Key winners from Jackson were Kathy Larson (water color), Sherry Neidigh (water color and ink drawing), and Alan K. Robinson (color print). Sherry was also one of the three winners of the Art Scholarship Portfolios. Alan was among three regional nominees for Kodak Medalion of Excellence for his photography.

WARMING UP ON A hard passage before rehearsal is cellist Cindy McFarlane.

While most Jackson students were still asleep, choir members were blending their voices at 7:10 a.m. practices. In December, under the direction of Mr. Daniel Miller, they presented their annual Christmas concert. Instead of the usual concert attire, members' dress included sweaters and scarves. An outdoors effect was achieved by the use of artificial trees, a sleigh, and snowmen donated by choir members for the occasion. The twenty Choralliers, selected by tryouts, entertained groups throughout the community, as well as singing on WSBT-TV.

The orchestra, led by Mr. Harold Kottlowski, performed in concerts in January and May, and also provided the music for National Honor Society inductions and commencement. Members participated in the Northern Indiana School Band, Orchestra, and Vocal Association music contest in February. Those who received firsts in Group I went on to compete at state level. For those who wanted to learn more than just the basics of music, a class in theory was taught by Mr. Dan Miller.

Sam Smith conducts marching band concert

Aching muscles and tired feet were common among band members as marching season got underway the week before school started. New members were taught the basics, while veterans brushed up on forgotten techniques. Starting with simple right-faces, they soon progressed to intricate half-time shows.

Following a heavy season of marching, a concert of half-time music was performed in the auditorium with guest conductor Mr. Sam Smith WSBT Sportscaster. He was given a plaque pronouncing him an honorary band member and also a Jackson band hat, to add to his collection of 80 hats.

January meant contest for most band members. The gold medals they won were compensation for the long hours spent practicing solos and ensembles. Those who received first ratings in Group I at District contest went on to State contest at Butler University where they were joined by musicians from all parts of the state.

Sweaters and pins were awarded to seniors in early spring as a reward for four years of service. Other awards given to deserving seniors band members were the Band Parents Award, the Berg Award, and the Sousa Award. Recipients of these awards were chosen by the entire band.

AS THE ONLY student in French 10, Debby Funston (right) works in the lab on independent study.

Besides their usual classroom studies the foreign language classes and clubs were involved in varied out-of-class activities. In December, German IV class prepared to present Dickens' "Christmas Carol." First the play was translated into German and parts were assigned. Everyone in the class had a part and some students had two parts. The play was performed for parents and guests in the choir room with taped background music. Scenery had been painted, and each character was costumed. Since there were no curtains, lights were turned off between scenes. Activities of the German club included a bake sale and a picnic at Rose Park where they played soccer.

In October the Latin Club traveled to Bendix Woods for a picnic. The ancient Roman holiday of Saturnalia was observed in December. A party was held at Doug Marsh's house with an almost authentic meal of spaghetti, Roman bread, and Coke. Member Doug MacHatton dressed for the occasion in a white toga he made from two sheets. Games such as monopoly and bingo gave French classes an opportunity to learn while playing.

Government— we study it, then try it

The Student Council made its contribution to make the last year the best. Council President Terri Gavin oversaw the Thanksgiving Basket Drive which collected over two tons of food for fifty-four needy families in the community. A most successful Spirit Week, the week of the football Homecoming, was topped off by a 40-0 victory over Michigan City Rogers. Student Council members have been working on plans for next year's student government at Riley. They have had two dances which were both a success.

American history, government, and sociology were opened up for anyone to take this year, not just juniors and seniors. This, along with the new semester system, were two changes that affected the social studies department.

BUSINESS

In business courses, students learned skills which would not only help them in college, but would also remain with them throughout their lives.

In addition, vocational courses were offered, including Cooperative Office Education (COE), Distributive Education (DE), and Industrial Cooperative Training (ICT). In the COE class taught by Mrs. Bernice DeVries, the students held discussions and movies and had speakers from various offices in the community.

DE students learned business, sales, management, and human relations. The DE program was handled in much the same way as the COE program, with students working part-time in addition to class work.

ICT offered students on-the-job training in many fields, from auto-mechanics to dental assistance.

ICT, DE, and COE mean jobs for credit

For those who want a work-study program, three vocational options are available; Industrial Cooperative Training (ICT), Distributive Education (DE), and Cooperative Office Education (COE). Students go to school part-time earning both money and credits. Even more valuable is the job experience which opens doors to the future. For example, Ted Gean entered a national service and courtesy contest sponsored by his employer, the Wohl Shoe Company, and won a cash award as well as an opportunity to win a college scholarship. A number of co-op students entered district and state contests sponsored by DECA, VICA, and COE. Seven out of eight COE girls who were entered in the Regional contest at Warsaw won awards, some more than one. Those who received first, second or third competed in State Contest in Indianapolis in April. Jackson had entries in eight categories there. Mrs. Bernice DeVries was sponsor of the COE program, Mr. Dennis Bodle, of ICT, and Mr. James Fenters, DE. Mr. Fenters experimented by meeting his class every morning at the Scottsdale Mall.

Use of calculator lightens lab load

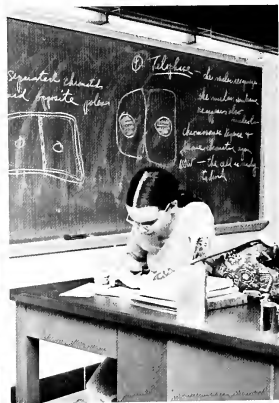

The Science department consisted of seven courses—two years of biology, two years of chemistry, and a year each of earth science, physical science, and physics.

Biology I classes discussed theories on how life began and the different processes of life. Contrary to popular belief, Biology II did more than just dissecting fetal pigs. They studied the environment and also learned about genetics.

Chemistry students used such lab equipment as beakers and bunsen burners to do their weekly labs. They also whipped out their calculators to aid them in solving tough problems.

Earth Science classes studied the formation of the earth as well as meteorology, weather, and the atmosphere.

Math students still searching for x and

The math department offered a wide variety of subject matter this year, including algebra, high school math, many phases of geometry (including analytical geometry, and transformational geometry), algebra-trigonometry, and calculus. The three-year algebra/geometry course was also continued from last year.

Algebra students searched for the elusive values of "x" and "y," while geometry students proved theorems and studied the principles of Euclid.

The students had an opportunity to work and study at many levels. Classes were offered for the college preparatory, as well as for the non-college-bound student. The math department received new textbooks daily for teacher evaluation for next year's math book adoptions.

GREASEPAINT

"The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," a musical comedy about the game of life, was presented March 13-15.

Sir, played by Chris Willy, was a high class hypocrite who tried to run the game by his own rules. He gave Cocky (Kent Heckaman) the bad end of every deal. He was a snob with his nose in the air, expensive clothes, cigars and red wine. Cocky was the pathetic poor man that never can get ahead. His clothes were old and torn and he seemed to be starving. Cocky, searching for ways to find luck, wore all possible symbols of good luck around his neck. But they are of little use. He alternated moods of extreme sadness and sheer joy. Together, Cocky and Sir danced, sang, and competed for a victory in the game of life. The kid and the girl were played by Jenny Leonhard and Kim Pound, respectively. As the kid, Jenny dazzled the audience with her little-girl personality while helping Sir with his schemes. Kim Pound as the girl, also working for Sir, attracts Cocky's attention and wins his heart, only to break it later. The chorus members or "urchins" were clad in gaily colored rags and stage makeup, no two the same.

Proms climax year's social activities

"Beginnings" was the theme of the 1975 Senior Prom on May 17. "Free and Easy" provided both fast and slow music for dancing and enjoyment. Couples entered the Knights of Columbus Hall through a garden built with props borrowed from Mr. Kauss.

The queen was Linda Melton, and her court consisted of Barb Naragon, Carol Wilhelm, Lynne Petersburg, Linda Frey, Connie Miller, Laurie Sharp and Kathy Larson.

The juniors chose "Days of Future Past" as their prom theme. Held May 10 at the Indiana Club, the Junior Prom was highlighted by the crowning of Randy Stout and Nancy Nellans as prom king and queen.

Variety highlights mini-course week

Once again mini-courses helped to relieve the monotony which inevitably sets in during the last month of school. Although lasting little more than half an hour each day, they provided a change of pace from the normal schedule. Techniques of card playing, fundamentals of judo, gardening, crocheting, volleyball, social and Israeli dancing--these and many other courses helped fulfill students' desire to learn something new. The pleasant spring weather was an added bonus for those who participated in outdoor sports like golf, tennis or kite-flying.

Visitors come from Europe, South America

Jackson High School welcomed five foreign exchange students during the year. Three of them came from Europe and arrived at the beginning of the year. The remaining two arrived in January from South America.

Kristina Bostrom represented her country, Sweden, and lived with Nan Gindleberger and her family. Kristina took many difficult courses, such as physics, in order to prepare herself to become a doctor.

From France came Denis Diquelou. He stayed with art teacher Robert Thomas. Denis plans to make his career in some aspect of farming.

Ruth Fredriksen, who spoke English better than many people who have lived in the U.S. all their life, stayed with Marnie Brehmer. While she was here she took a part time job and was a delegate to the World Youth Forum held in the New York City area.

In the middle of the winter the two South Americans arrived at Jackson. Both claimed they had never been cold in their lives. They couldn't say that for long.

Isabel Marianelle Piroja came to Jackson during her summer vacation from Lima, Peru. She stayed for nine weeks with DiAnn and Roxanne Peterson. Chavela, as she preferred to be called, came over on a Lions' club scholarship and liked to read and study.

Hailing from Bogota, Colombia, Nohora Luz Mejia arrived in the States on her 18th birthday. Nohora graduated from high school in Colombia in November and planned to go on to the university when she got home. She stayed with Becky Bussert and kept up her horseback riding skills by riding with Becky.

The yellow light was on inside the gym, the locker rooms, and the pool. Time was running out. South Bend Tribune sports writers adopted the term "doomsday Tigers" to refer to the Jackson athletic teams in their last year of competition. But it came to be a term of respect as fired-up teams and fans faced each contest with the determination to go out fighting.

Tiger coaches never dwelt on "what might have been." They concentrated their efforts on helping every Jackson athlete to reach his or her highest potential, and in the process the teams were, overall, as successful as ever in the school's 10-year history.

The cross country squad won 11 of 12 dual meets, and the football team won 6 of 9 games against strong competition. The volleyball team won the sectional; the perennially strong boys' swim team was undefeated in dual meets and second in state with a champion in two individual events and one relay team. The wrestlers had two sectional champions. Vince Keszei, undefeated in regular season, was awarded the Harold F. Mumby award for mental attitude at the State Meet where he placed fourth. The girls' swim team also had a winning season. The '74 golf team won the sectional and placed 5th in the state, and the '75 golfers are in a winning season so far.

Girls' sports got a boost with the passage of an addition to the U.S. Education Amendments (Title IX) requiring that girls be provided equal opportunities in athletics in any federally-funded institution. Jackson already had girls' teams in volleyball and swimming. Last spring softball was added, and this spring a girls' track team was organized.

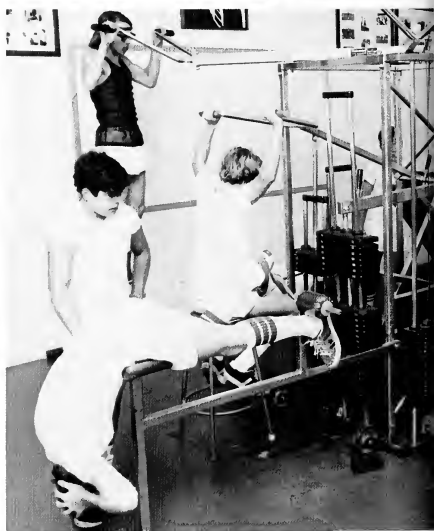

Riley-Jackson combine for bowling, hockey

Co-ed gym classes were a continuing experiment at Jackson this year. Jacksonites could participate in aquatics, lifetime sports or gymnastics. Students in lifetime sports took a trip to a bowling alley, while those taking aquatics learned about life saving. Blindness didn't stop freshman Linda Merrill from taking part in gym class. Senior Kathy Goetz took time every day to help Linda do almost everything that her classmates did.

With the coming merger of Jackson and Riley, students from both schools combined their talents to form single teams in bowling and hockey.

The Wildcats, the name given to the Riley-Jackson hockey team, consisted of 40 members, fifteen of whom came from Jackson. Bowling was divided into two leagues, according to averages.

Football team upsets strong Dwenger, Penn

The equipment was turned in, the lockers cleaned out and the only things left of Jackson football are the memories. The best of these memories are of the upset victories over 11th ranked Fort Wayne Dwenger and 9th-ranked Penn.

The first upset victory was against Dwenger. The bus ride to the game (some 80 miles), running through the stadium tunnel and the hard-hitting fast pace of the game added a different picture to the game for the players. Dwenger didn't know what hit them when the Tigers connected for the winning touchdown in the final seconds of the game.

Jackson's last game ever was against Penn. For most seniors it was the last time they'd ever play football. They were out there to have fun. The papers thought Penn would easily defeat Jackson. The team had a tradition to carry on: to never lose to Penn. They drove from their own one-foot line with about 4½ minutes left in the game and 3 points down. Kevin Geraghty carried two consecutive big plays and on the third, he plunged over for the go-ahead points.

Penn had about one minute left in which to halt the upset. Ron Metcalfe picked off a pass to put the game away. The Jackson fans flooded the field to show their approval. The ten-year-old tradition still held.

The team ended with a 6-3 record, second best in the school's history.

Geans double trouble for Tiger opponents; depth pays dividends

Cross country is a demanding sport. Participants must run a great number of miles year-round to build the endurance needed for the 2½-mile races. And depth is the essential element to a winning team. At least seven members must have the speed and endurance to be top finishers in the races. This year's cross country team had the depth that enabled them to win 11 of their 12 dual meets. According to Coach Larry Morningstar, "this team had more depth than any other in Jackson's history."

The summer before the season began, Coach Morningstar sponsored 'Root Beer Runs' every Thursday. Teams were decided by who showed up, and the winners received root beer. The length of the race increased as the season drew near. So in the fall the team reaped the benefits of their summer running. They won 11 straight dual meets and placed above all other South Bend teams in the LaPorte Regional.

Tennis team is young but 'competitive'

With only two members back from last year's Sectional champions (the number 5 and number 7 men), the tennis team's prospects did not seem bright. But the players improved, according to Coach Dave Dunlap, and developed into a competitive team. Although their record was 8-9, all but two of the losses were by only one point. And they got to the quarter-finals of the Sectional.

Tiger girls win volleyball sectional

This was a rebuilding year for the volleyball team. The team was experienced, but the rebuilding came with the arrival of first-year coach Becky Luebben. At the start of practice, she "didn't even know how to set up the net." But her enthusiasm made up for her lack of knowledge of the game. Her spirit was displayed by the girls on the team as they continually improved. Consistency was the team's only major problem. After winning their first match in the sectional, they lost to Plymouth 15-2 in the first game of their semi-final match, but came back to take the match and went on to win the sectional.

Kreitzman's Tiger cagers never give up

Jackson basketball was hindered this year because only two lettermen returned from last year's squad. After losing the first two games, the team won five straight before losing to state-ranked Adams at the Notre Dame ACC in the Holiday Tourney. The Tigers continued to keep their record above 500 before dropping into a seven-game losing streak. The last regular season game was the roundballers' defeat of MC Marquette.

Jackson drew Bremen in the La-Ville sectional with hopes of capturing a second sectional crown. Bremen fell to the Tigers and Jackson faced defending champ Plymouth in semi-final action. The game ended after two overtime periods, with Jackson on the short end of the 44-42 score. Coach Joe Kreitzman felt that the team ended the year in style because of the great effort put forth in the last three games.

GIRLS' SWIMMING

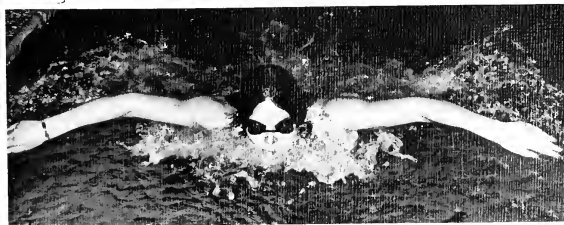

The Tigertunas started out small but the addition of several divers and swimmers aided them in their wins over several teams, including LaSalle and Riley. The girls finished their season with a 8-5 dual meet record. They placed third in the city.

Two girls on the team stood out from the rest. They were freshman Shawn McCluskey and junior Lori Niblick. Lori set over 10 pool and school records. Shawn set records in the 50 and 100 yard backstrokes, the 50 free, and the medley relay. Both were major contenders in the state meet in Indianapolis. According to Co-captains Nancy Fahey and Sandy Szeberenyi, "We couldn't have done it without those two, but the rest of the team was equally important. Since 5 places earned points, we needed good performances by everyone." Coach Brenda Saunders said, "After five years of coaching I've learned to love my job and my girls."

'74 golf team fifth in state; three returning

Bruce Knutson led the '74 golf team to its 22-2 record with an average of 76.5 strokes per round. Lori Garbacz shot the first sub-par round of the year, 69, and enabled the team to capture a dual meet with a record of 290 on the Erskine golf course. The year was highlighted by 17 consecutive victories. It was then topped off with the Sectional Championship and second place in the Regional. A fifth place in the State meet made the best finish ever for a Jackson team.

of 6-4. Left hander Jim Mathews led the pitching staff with three one-hitters and two two-hitters. Greg Springer led in hitting with a .297 average. This summer the team's batting average of .332 helped put them number one in the F.O.P. league, where they were known as the Braves.

Wade leads trackmen to 6-4 season record

The 1974 Cindermen under the direction of Coach Bill Schlundt ended the season winning six out of ten dual meets, placing third in the now defunct NIVC, second in the city and fifth in the rain-hampered Sectional meet. Three out of the four losses came to teams like South Bend Sectional winner LaSalle, Elkhart Sectional winner Elkhart Memorial and powerhouse Gary West who tied for state.

In eleven of the eighteen meets, school and field records were set. Leading the way was John Wade, the only member of the team to go to state, with six record-setting throws in the discus and shot put. In the Concord Relays the intermediate relay team of Randy and Ron Metcalfe, Ken Elek and Don Vandewalle set a new record and were the only ones from Jackson to receive a first place. Freshman Dennis Sill was a standout in the 880, while teammate Tom Vandewalle continually broke freshman discus records.

The '75 track team under the first and last year direction of Coach Larry Morningstar are looking for their best year ever. Instead of waiting for official practice to start, many started working out last summer in voluntary evening practices, not only to better their own personal times but to show to everyone that when the final race is over, Jackson will go out a winner.

Tigers' power evidenced in spring sports

Courage and endurance were the words to describe the '75 track team. Individual members risked personal injuries in an effort to better the team's performance. In the Concord Relays Ted Gean ran a 220, on a cinder track, minus a shoe that had been torn off during the baton hand-off. At the same meet Jim LaFree ran numerous events with both of his knees scraped and bleeding. Cindermen who were continuous winners were Tony Roth in the 100 and the 220, Ron Metcalfe who set a new 440 record, Ted Gean in the mile, Fred Gean in the two mile, and Don Vandewalle in the 880.

The future looked bright for Cuyler Miller's baseball team this spring with six returning lettermen. The Tigers started quickly by defeating their first six opponents. The team was averaging more than eight runs a game during the winning streak before dropping two games to Adams and St. Joe. Arch-Rival Clay was defeated in a close game that showed the Tigers' ability to come back after the losses. The team maintained a winning record throughout the season.

Led by Lori Garbacz and John Weiss, the golf team had an 12 and 4 record this year. In the first five matches Lori was medalist for Jackson. In one match John shot a one under par 69, on the Erskine course. The team was fifth in the LaPorte Invitational with Garbacz placing seventh overall. In the Culver Invitational Weiss was the leader for Jackson with the team placing in a tie for sixth place. Other members of the team were Tony Thompson, Scott Anderson and Tom Hillman.

The girls' softball team was coached by both Mr. and Mrs. Saunders. Kathy Goetz, Cindy Miller and Mariou Marosz led the team in batting average. Hard practices every night kept fifty girls hopeful of making the team. After the final cuts only twenty-five girls remained. The team had exceptional speed which enabled them to steal over 75 bases, - 32 in one game against Elkhart Central.

POLE-VAULTER Randy Metcalfe clears the bar with room to spare.
TWO-MILERS Fred Gean and Kevin Jebelian break the string one, two.

BARRY STALDINE gets the jump on the gun.
AFTER COMPLETING his leg of the race, Jim LaFree hands off to Dennis Sill.

One-third of Jackson staff have been

"And where will YOU be next year?" This was the question teachers were asked by acquaintances wherever they went in the last year of Jackson. The answer was always the same, with variations on the theme: "I wish I knew." Although they had had two years to adjust to the phasing out of Jackson as a high school, the faculty found it somewhat traumatic to be "displaced persons," subject to assignment elsewhere in the South Bend Community School Corporation. Of the 96 total staff at Jackson, fully one-third have been here since the school opened ten years ago. The outlook of most was optimistic, however, although department head, counseling, coaching and other extracurricular positions were not assured. Teachers who had built strong academic and activity programs at Jackson were generally prepared to start again in another building with another student body.

custodians, cooks keep us comfortable

With the beginning of school last fall came complaints about the price of plate lunches, which had risen to 50 cents, 5 cents over last year's price. But the lunch prepared by the cafeteria staff not only costs less than going out to eat, but it has more nutritional value than a "Hot Sam" or an ice cream cone. Still some like to get away from the school for a while at noon. Others enjoy the cafeteria atmosphere where one can catch up on all happenings while eating chocolate chip cookies.

SENIORS

It's the first day of high school in September, 1971. The freshmen are huddled together around the doors of the building. Suddenly the voice of the assistant principal comes over the P.A. and says, "All freshmen report to the auditorium at this time." Panic overcomes the new ninth graders. Their hearts stop. Somehow, though, they make their way to the auditorium, and there they meet their respective homeroom teachers.

We, the graduating class of 1975, were those panic-stricken freshmen. We took all the abuse and harassment a freshmen class is subjected to, and we emerged with flying colors. We were no ordinary ninth grade class though. We won the hall-decorating contest at basketball homecoming; and throughout the year we demonstrated the spirit and enthusiasm synonymous with Jackson High School.

Then we were sophomores. Once again we won the hall-decorating contest; and this year WE harassed the freshmen. However, this year we were somewhat shocked to find out that we will be the last graduating class at Jackson.

Then came junior year, and our first prom. In order to put on a prom, we needed to raise money; and raise money we did. On our first bake sale we collected $150! All in all we made over $800, and our Junior Prom turned out to be one of the best ever. And for the 3rd straight year, we won the hall-decorating contest.

Now we're seniors, the last senior class to graduate at Jackson. This year it was our job to "help make this year the best in Jackson's history." We've shown great support for our athletic teams, whether as fans or participants; and as a result of this support, we've accomplished great things.

As individuals we are responsible, concerned, hard working, and proud of who and what we are. Since that first day of high school four years ago, we have grown and shared a great deal. We have benefitted from being at Jackson; Jackson has benefitted from having us.

Foods, fashions only a few minutes away

Eating out was easier than ever this year for people in the Jackson community. The Ireland Road area between Michigan and Ironwood had more restaurants per mile—everything from night clubs to drive-ins—than any other section of the city, and almost all opened within the last year and a half. Of course the catalyst for all this activity was the Scottsdale Mall, whose business continued to grow, only a three-minute walk away from Jackson. Merchants of the area not only provided convenient stopping, shopping, and eating but also gave jobs to more than 100 willing workers from Jackson. So, as students appreciated the quality products and friendly service in south side business establishments, many of them also helped to dispense these products and services.

What does Associates mean when they talk about an Honest Shake?

They mean they do business honestly and fairly.

Here's how. Associates is in the business of lending money to all kinds of people for any purpose. So they've put their rates on display in every office and explained them with an easy to understand wall chart.

In addition, they've prepared a fact filled guide, Straight Talk About Borrowing, to help you borrow intelligently.

And now they have a special toll free phone number 800-447-4700 so you can call our Customer Relations Director at the home office if you're ever less than completely satisfied.

So if you need money for any reason, remember, at Associates you'll get an Honest Shake.

THE EDITORS

DIRECTOR JOHN H. B. KAUSS observes the JHS players during a practice. SOPHOMORE TIM GROGAN is obviously displeased with the ref's last call.

JOHN NUNER and Tom Samuels take a breather between classes. BEN LEDLEY, Evan Petty, Chris Willy, Jay Saylor, Bill Langdon, and Tom Mabry put the Rockettes to shame with the display of their shapely legs.

June, 1975 . . .

The school year comes to a close. Seniors say goodbye to classmates they may never see again. Juniors, sophomores, and freshmen prepare to walk away from Jackson with the solemn knowledge that with them ends a decade (1965-1975) which was the whole life span of a new high school. The green light comes on, and they look to the future—starting at Riley High School next fall.
